

play urban.
conakry

preferred locations

carmen egger
a[FA] 2019

01 terrain nongo

why?

- _big trees as potential
- _steep topography
- _seems like a place where people gather and play

02 kaporo beach

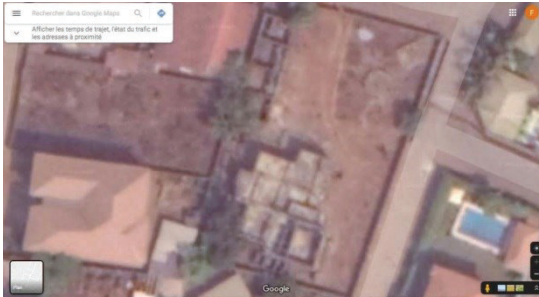

why?

_though it's trashy, having the ocean in the background is very powerful _interesting narrow corridor on the way to the beach

_potential of semi-finished / skeleton structures

03 ourébé 3

why?

- _nice enclosure inside
- compound walls
- _interesting composition
- between building – podium –
- low-level walls
- _round podium could be a
- potential stage

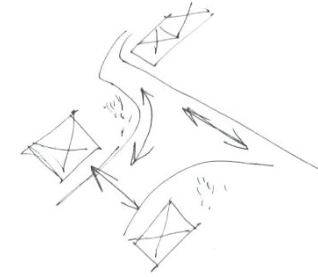

play urban.
conakry

[sitting in] open spaces

carmen egger
a[FA] 2019

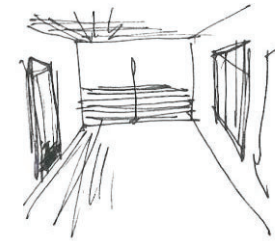

village center

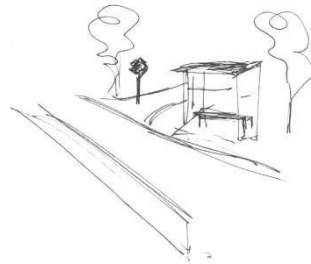

village crossing

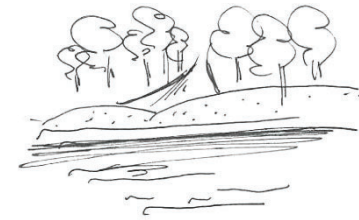

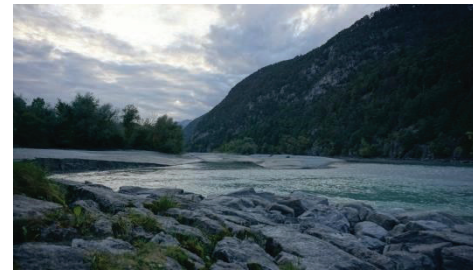

church

underpass

bus stop

river belt

organized, clean

familiar open spaces
rietz i.tirol, sept. 2019

emerged, self organized

grass

asphalt

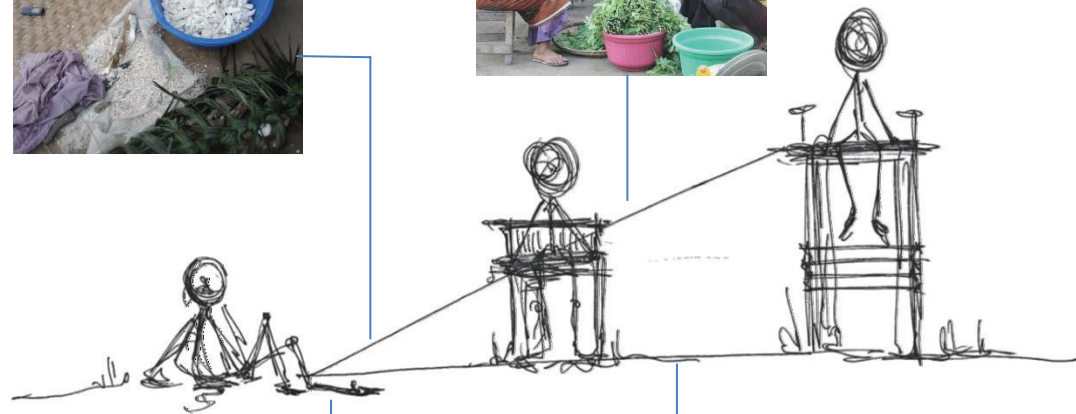

stone

wall

chair

$\pm 0,00$

+ 45 cm

+ 7m

urban seating typologies / heights

comparison tshumbe/dr congo, august 2019

upcycled seating possibilities

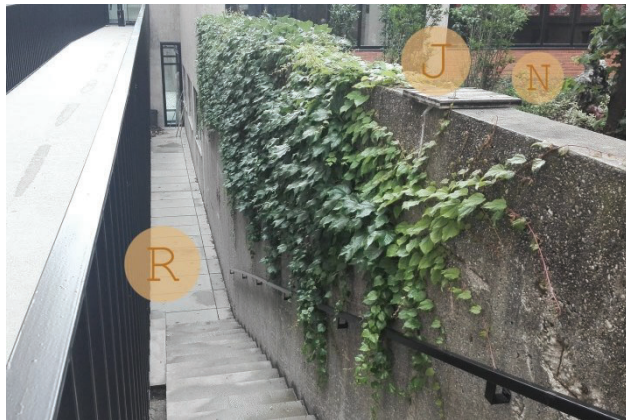

hybrid sitting

play urban.
conakry

exercises

romeo & juliette - m² - object

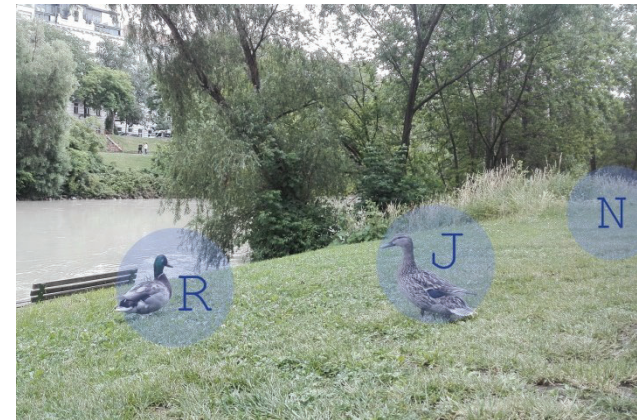

carmen egger
a[FA] 2019

angewandte, 1010 vienna

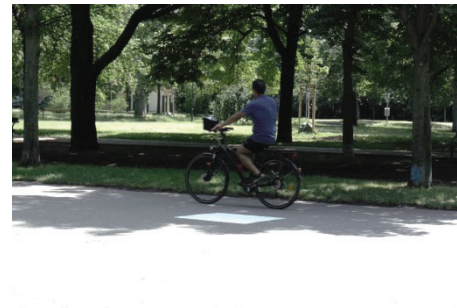

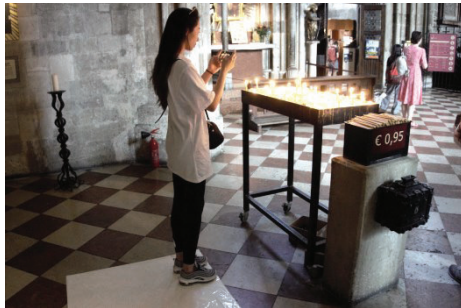

strudelhofstiege, 1090 vienna

friedensbrücke, 1090 vienna

possible urban scenographies
june 2019

01 romeo & juliette

different urban situations with the 1x1m fabric vienna june 2019

02 m²

my personal (lost) object

what is an object?

it is interesting how we can get used to and build up an emotional relationship between ourselves and an object.

probably it is more about the connection to the memories and experiences we share with it.

the term object also reminds me to the factor of size and the proportion between one and the object itself. for example, when I put myself into space, all the planets are like objects to me.

but when I am standing in my room I would probably not say, I am living in an object.

...

03 object